She cut. The premise of 20/4 intermittent fasting is to limit food intake to a limited 4-hour eating window. Of course, this logically means that you will have a 20-hour fast window in which you are not consuming any calories. The natural consequence of this eating pattern for many people will be weight loss, as it is usually impractical to consume too. Since fat can be converted to water so easily, many combine an intermittent dry fast with a ketogenic diet, which is a very low-carb diet that is focused on consuming about 75 percent fat to go with 20 percent protein and 5 percent carbohydrates. The purpose of this diet is to cause the body to burn ketones, which fat produces, as opposed to. As previously mentioned, when your body is cut off from the calories in food, it will start to burn body fat to meet energy needs, ultimately helping you lose weight. One 2014 review article found that intermittent fasting resulted in a 3 to 8% reduction in weight over 3 to 24 weeks (9). A different review study from 2011 showed that. The practice of 16/8 intermittent fasting involves eating only during an 8-hour daily window and fasting for the remaining 16 hours.
